

A YOUNG MAN MISSING.

HENRY WALTHALL MYSTERIOUSLY DISAPPEARED FROM HOME.

Exception to a Bridal Party—Puddle Mill to Resume Operations—Odd Fellows' Banquet—Other Manchester News.

MANCHESTER BUREAU RICHMOND TIME, 112 BULL STREET BEATRICE MILL.

Mr. Henry Walthall, whose name who has been living with his parents on Ninth and Market streets, is missing and his people are uneasy about his whereabouts.

The young man left his home Tuesday night in his working clothes and did not return to it, nor go to his work as a man on the Atlantic Coast Line railroad.

He failed to make his appearance at that place and has not been seen since by his people or friends. It was at first thought he had gone to the mountains to hunt, but when the country went to his sweet heart's residence he found her at home and she said she had not seen him since the night before. When the members of the family examined his work clothes it was found that the young man had taken away a portion of his best clothes.

His mother and the rest of the family have been trying to learn of his whereabouts, but have been unsuccessful. At the same time they think anything serious has befallen him.

TO RESUME WORK.

The puddle-mill at the Old Dominion Iron and Nail Works will resume operations on Monday next. Notice to this effect was posted in these works yesterday.

Since all hands have been laid off and the employees have been without work at this branch of these works they employ about one hundred hands, and they all receive good pay, as they have to have experience in working.

In the notice Mr. Blankenship, the superintendent, states to the men that the outlook for work the coming year is very bright, and the chances are that they will have steady employment. The information has been greeted with pleasure by the puddlers and helpers at these works.

THE ADJUTANT-GENERAL.

General William Nalle Will probably take charge of his office To-day.

Adjutant General William Nalle has not yet arrived in this city to take charge of his new office, but it is thought that he will reach here some time to-day. His office is still in charge of Lieutenant Croxton, of the United States Army, to whom General Anderson turned it over as soon as the appointment of his successor had been announced.

General Anderson takes the ground that his office has been empty since December 31, the day when he was placed on the retired list by Governor O'Farrell and Brigadier General of the First Brigade and Adjutant General of Virginia.

One of the last official acts of General Anderson was to participate in the examination of Captain W. S. P. Mayo and Second Lieutenant George W. Warren, Company B, of the Blues Battalion.
